The idea came up at a party years ago and I took a few simple prototypes and worked on it a little bit. I used to have a good 3D printer, but now its just sitting on the shelf as I need to find a new one. Once I get one, I intend to make a printed version. I recently started drawing up a 3D design and I'd like to reach out to artists who would be interested in making prints of their own designs. Ideally I'd like to print these items by hand, but there's no reason to limit this to the 3D printer. The main objective of this project is to not only bring new art to the public, but also to have a space where artists can work and share their art. The physical space where the prints will be displayed also contains a gallery of mixed media and performance art. The goal is to capture something tangible from the physicality of the world, the surprise and satisfaction of remembering details or finding a hidden gem. Some of these items will be available in the gallery, but the majority will be for sale. This is a space to share with friends and find. The title of this project (and my name) is the truest truth. We will see what happens and what it means. There's no outside influence or events that 570a42141b
