Mr. Steyer, a prominent Democratic donor, was the subject of an article by the Times detailing how he was accused of inappropriately using $120 million in donations to finance his political activities. But Mr. Steyer said he had done nothing wrong and called the article "demonstrably false." He insisted he had done nothing wrong. "The allegations in the Times article are demonstrably false," Mr. Steyer said. "I will be using my own resources to put them to rest. I believe the real story has yet to be told." But on Monday, Mr. Steyer's companies said that they would be conducting a review of their books. "In the interest of the integrity of our financial reporting and to ensure that it is accurately reported to our shareholders, we are conducting an audit of our financial statements for the fiscal year ended December 31, 2017," Michael L. Aquilina, the chief executive of Middleby, a firm founded by Mr. Steyer that is not being audited, said in a statement. The Middleby statement said the review, which would begin "shortly," would determine whether certain expenses listed in Middleby's financial statements should have been listed in separate books set up for Mr. Steyer's campaign committees. Start Autodesk Autocad, select the menu "File" -> "Import Project File...". The project file (.dcb) will be downloaded to your computer. Now you can use the resulting.drc file (with the enclosed key) to open and import the project file. `db.Projects.find({"Status" : "Open"}).count()` Now, i want to add some sort of count field to each record which indicates the number of elements in the collection. So, now the result should be `db.Projects.find({"Status" : "Open"}).count { "count" : 1 }` The above statement is not correct because count doesn't have a value. Any suggestions on how to resolve this. A: If you do it using aggregation framework, then you need to use
