Amazon India is expanding its inventory and services to many locations where the company has never done business in the past. The company, which had only a physical store in the United States, is adding more Amazon.in locations in India, just as it expands its business to retailers and third-party sellers. For online retail, this expansion also means that Amazon will have more of a presence than it did two years ago. A year ago, Amazon had only a few small physical stores, like the India-based one in Hyderabad, and a single showroom in the United States. Now, the company has about 18 physical stores across India and plans to launch more than two dozen in the next few years. Amazon has hired staff in India, including some from the European Union, to lead the new operations. Its customer support center, where customers can reach out by phone and chat, also now has a dedicated number for the country. Fareed Inayatullah, who was among the first employees hired in India, said about a year ago, that Amazon was overwhelmed by the sheer number of customer calls it received. Now, Inayatullah said, the volume of requests is within its capability. The growth of Amazon's customer service capacity in India is clearly evident in the number of new people joining the workforce. Amazon is hiring for its customer support center in Hyderabad, where it has a retail store. "We are hiring a lot of people and we are getting more and more traffic from India," Inayatullah said. "We are trying to be very fast and responsive to all customers." India's orders through Amazon.com and Amazon.in have increased to "You wake up trapped in an empty cold room, with a ladder next to you, leading somewhere. Where could it go? Who opened the door? What are the odds?" Imagine yourself at a "Game Center", a virtual video game center. Many strange and unexplainable events happened in the vicinity of the game center, many of them unable to be solved by standard investigation. It is impossible to know who or what the people who left you there are, or what they could be planning. It is impossible to open the door. The only thing that you can do is survival and escape. Can you make it out alive? Over 50 rooms are already in the game and more are added every week. Keep in mind that even after your escape you will have to survive in the rooms and make it to the roof in the end. Can you make it?. How to play: - Tap the screen to move - Move your character up and down the ladder to go to different rooms or the roof - Survive as long as you can by collecting valuable items and eating food Game Center: Hope you enjoy the game, please help us by give us a vote. The odds: Survive Game Description: Game Description This is the more luck-based version of Drake's Odds: Survive, and I have to say, that it really feels like the game is more of a gamble. A high risk high reward. There's a lot to do here, and an interesting challenge in that for you to survive, you will have to put yourself in some very dangerous situations. But the question remains: Will you make it out alive? Choose Your Fate Although this game is closer to an RPG than the luck-based Drake's Odds, you can still play as a Bounty Hunter in a town called Drake's Crossroad, a town where your Bounty is high due to two out-of-the-ordinary events: the disappearance of a wealthy doctor, and a case of murder in a very strange fashion. During this event, there are some odd "scientists" who come and examine the crime scene, and they made some disturbing discoveries. They believe there might be some alien forces working in the town, and a powerful ship of the alien forces has already entered the atmosphere. While the town awaits for the appearance of these strange beings, rumors circulate among the villagers of another event that may happen in this town: that of a runaway ghost. Some of the townspeople have already started getting sick from strange and unexplainable sickness, and it's believed that this is caused by the ship that has already entered the atmosphere. To decide whether or not this town will be your place to be when you'll be facing your fate, you need to make a choice: Who will you choose as your weapon? Part of the Decision Making Before you decide which of your friends you will be shooting at, you need to choose which of them will be your weapon. Some are very loyal friends, and will never betray you. Others are distant acquaintances, and you can't count on them to be your best friend. You will also have to decide whether you will fire your weapon at the alien ship, or if you will let it destroy your town. You won't be able to tell if you've been successful by simply looking at the screen; rather, you will have to reload from time to time, and then wait for the next attempt. With the game being more of a luck-based game, it may be better to choose your friends with caution. However, with two the Rapper's Freshmen 150 | All odds were compiled by ESPN Insider RJ Alatus Surprise Team Role: Chance is overwhelming: It's been a banner college basketball season thus far. Such an incredible week of college hoops has set the bar unreasonably high, hence impossible for any team to meet. So the bar drops, and it's on this little guy to step up and grab the ball. The odds of staying #oncampus are incredibly high. Player to Watch: Cameron Reddish. I've been a big proponent of Reddish not just in the ACC but in all of college basketball all year, thus far posting a remarkable 104.1 PER and ranking as the No. 7 overall freshman by ESPN Insider. Storyline to Watch: Duke vs. Syracuse. This appears to be a foregone conclusion. Duke is usually a force to be reckoned with. They're perennial national champions and are exciting (as much as them being fun) to watch every year. The Orange are cocky. They're from Syracuse, baseball powerhouse, and as the preseason preseason's darling to be hated, the media have been relentless in feeding the misconceptions. At the very least, we should see a shootout. Stat One, Your Turn: The Duke vs. Syracuse rivalry is notorious for it's intensity. If excitement is measured by home-court advantage at the Carrier Dome and the amount of blood that gets spilled, then this matchup will be probably the bloodiest. Storyline Two, Your Turn: Reddish vs. Bamberg. This microcosm of the ACC vs. the ACC will center on Cameron Reddish. Duke has one of the nation's premier recruits with the multidimensional skill set; Reddish is the opposite. He's as multidimensional as they come and can score in a variety of ways. But Reddish has to be able to defend at a level that Duke's recruiting priorities can respect; Bamberg, the defending national champions, are one of the best defensive teams in Europe. Stat Two, Your Turn: Their chemistry. At this stage, Duke's additions have been mostly two-way guards, rarely preferring wings or forwards. Leaving Reddish to guard Bamberg's Crawford will prove crucial. Bamberg's offensive weapon is Franz Wilhelm Daell. Daell is the sort of wildcat type of combo-guard players
