Q: Doctrine2: How to keep a UniqueManyToMany Relationship from being removed by setting CascadeType to all I have two entities Category and Image. To simplify things there are no join table. Category (id | name) Image (id | category_id | name) I want to have a unique many to many association. So they can be linked using a category_id. I've configured it to cascade all deletes in my Category.orm.yml

If I delete a category using the admin backend I see that the images associated to that category are not set to null, but actually get deleted. But I don't want that. I want to keep the images. When I change the default setting CascadeType to none, I don't see any images getting deleted, but now the images become orphan. How can I avoid that? A: Instead of CascadeType: none You should use CascadeType: SET NULL Unfortunately it seems like there's no way to change it
