Q: How to make column names in DataGridView editable I have a DGV with some column names from database as a source, one of them is id. I want the column id to be editable as a textbox. I did : `dataGridView1.Columns[1].DefaultCellStyle.Format = "N2";` which makes the cell value bold, and make textbox not editable, and I tried `dataGridView1.Columns[1].DefaultCellStyle.Format = "N";` `dataGridView1.Columns[1].DefaultCellStyle.Format = "N2";` which is not working. A: You can't change the DataGridView's column editability, but you can change the cell editor by setting a `CellEditStyle` to the desired format:

`dataGridView1.Columns[1].DefaultCellStyle = dataGridView1.CellEditStyle; dataGridView1.Columns[1].DefaultCellStyle.Format = "N";` A: You can't change the editability of the columns. However you can make the cell value bold by setting: `dataGridView1.Columns[1].DefaultCellStyle.Format = "n2";` and if you want the cell to be editable then you have to use: `dataGridView1.CellBorderStyle = DataGridViewCellBorderStyle.None;` `dataGridView1.ReadOnly = false;` Hope it helps. This invention relates to a deflection yoke for a cathode-ray tube which is installed in a television receiver. A conventional deflection yoke comprises a coil member, a coupling lens and an aperture grill
