Claim: The end of the world is Novemeber 22, 1997. FALSE Example: [Source: Lawrence Welk] LAWRENCE WELK IN COSTCO Over the past few years, my heart had been telling me that I should start preparing for the end of the world. Like everyone else, I have seen several end of the world signs that had been predicted by “soothsayers” around the world. Could it be true? Then one day, I saw it. I saw an end-of-the-world entry in the employees’ weekly calendar. That day was marked: “December 22, 1997.” I laughed as the clerk looked at me. “What are you laughing at?” he asked. “Well,” I replied, “since you put it there, I guess I have to prepare.” (Welk died in September 1993.) Later, when I shared this with the company, I was asked to explain this possibility. Some said, “Don’t let the end of the world affect your business.” Others said, “When will the end of the world come?” Origins: The above example is one of the most frequently quoted examples of people who believe that the world is coming to an end on December 22, 1997. Like most people who embrace conspiracy theories, they have their reasons, many of which may be valid. The reason that November 22, 1999 has become associated with the idea that the world is coming to an end is that the first batch of computers to use what is called “Year 2000” encoding was delivered to institutions in the United States on that date. Like it or not, this “Year 2000” switchover dates has become the prime reason that people believe the world is ending on December 22, 1997. For most of those who have this belief, “further evidence” of a coming apocalypse is required, and that evidence is the numerous dates predicted by numerous voices, from Nostradamus (1503) to Edgar Cayce (1901-1945) to Jacques Cousteau (1910-1997), where the dates of December 22, 1997, December 21, 1997, and even November 15, 1997 were all predicted as the end-of-the-world dates. Some people say that there have been

Q: Stop fading text at 10 pixels to the right I have a dynamically sized button (width:100% and box-sizing:border-box) I need to fade a div (font-size:0; line-height:0;) to the right from 10px at the end of the button. The button will stretch and possibly add more content, and I want the fade to be consistent. Lorem ipsum dolor sit amet, consectetur adipiscing elit. Integer ultricies leo ac odio accumsan tincidunt. Cras id urna porttitor, vestibulum velit nec, ornare neque. Vivamus consectetur mi congue nunc varius, quis sagittis eros pretium. Etiam sit amet lacus dolor, non convallis purus. Duis mauris sem, lacinia quis iaculis eu, rhoncus a enim. Vivamus id tortor velit. Pellentesque eu ipsum justo. Aliquam eget libero sed justo volutpat tincidunt. Cras sem enim, condimentum ut luctus eu, consectetur a enim. Duis eleifend laoreet ante non rutrum. Aliquam sed convallis eros. The problem is the text keeps getting cut off and continues to fade to the right. I want it to stop at 10px and keep fading to the right. Here's the CSS: .button { box-sizing:border-box; padding: 5px 20px; min-width: 0; text-align: center; border-radius: 2px; border: 1px solid #00a1b4; color: #fff; font-weight: 700; background: #00a1b4; border-color: #00a1b4; -webkit-transition: background 0.2s; -moz-transition: background 0.2s; transition: background 0
